

Cats Are Amazing!

Have you watched your cat lately? She's probably trying to tell you a thing or two. Here are some of the ways kitty "talks" to you...

A gently waving tail says your kitty is contented and happy.

Twitching ears could mean she's anxious about something.

She flattens her ears to let you know she's frightened or annoyed.

A male cat who flicks his tail over his back and towards his head is saying, "I'm the top cat around here!"

When she quickly flips the tail upwards, she's saying, "Hello."

When kitty flops onto his side, he wants you to caress him.

When he holds his back high, tail straight up, ears flattened, and teeth are showing... watch out, he's going to attack!

Rubbing her head or side chin against you says, "This buddy belongs to ME."

Eyes half closed means she's relaxed (or she's not feeling well).

Head stretched forward means kitty wants you to touch her.

When your cat stares down another cat, he wants to be boss.

When your kitty "talks" to you, she probably thinks you understand everything she's saying. Just like you probably want her to understand your strange human words and actions. But we can never be sure that our pets understand us.

Only God understands us perfectly.

He knows how you look when you're tired or upset.

He understands your sighs, your moods, and your feelings.

God understands what's in your heart without you ever saying a single word.

He knows us inside and out, through and through.

He knows us because He made us,
just as He made your cat and every other creature.
So when you need someone who understands you, run to the Lord God, who listens and helps every time.

Our God is Perfect!
